THE UNDERSPACE WAR

Judas is a criminal. His only way out of the system is to volunteer as a test pilot for a new type of spaceship that can travel between dimensions to travel faster than light. Something goes wrong when he comes in contact with the sentient matter from the other dimension, and he crash-lands on the wrong world, beginning his fight for peace and freedom. The natives and the people of Earth don't agree with his plans, though. What will his future and the future of mankind hold?

Judas is back, and this time his fledgling government comes under attack from enemies within and without. Earth tries to settle the score for good, while enemies on planet cannot wait to see Judas and his whole family exterminated. Then there's this business with the Underspace entity being reborn in the flesh...

Things are not going to end well.

Years after the events of the previous two books, Judas, now a disembodied spirit, decides to be reborn as a physical being. He immediately gets up to his old habits, trying his best to charm the ladies (even if they are his distant descendants) and fight oppression in the galaxy.

It's Underspace vs. Overspace in this final volume of the Underspace War Trilogy.
